"Prez Sez..."

by Gretchen Tomm - President

SUMMER

What makes one person want to ride motorcycles and others could care less?

I never knew I would love to ride my own bike but about 31 years ago I met a guy that had a Harley. He asked me if I wanted to go for a ride and I said yes. After a few months I realized this guy wasn't for me. But, I missed the riding.

A very wise friend of mine suggested I take the Motorcycle Safety Course and get my own motorcycle. What a concept! So I took the course and purchased my first motorcycle. I was very fortunate to have quite a few friends that did ride and took me "under their wing", even some cool women that rode for many years. I'm so glad they did!

Still in the wind..... Gretchen

Safety Report

by "BMW George" Homenko - Safety Officer

I Don't Ride Without It...

I have recently had a bad run of motorcycle luck.

For this story, I was riding up the coast, with the club in the middle of nowhere. Locales will know the place, about 5 miles north of Gualala. I was just cruising along in Big Blue a 2002 BMW R1200CL in third gear. Not fast not slow, just going with the flow. And then I had no gears, motor ran fine, just no go forward in any gear. Now what do you do? Ben and Barb Johnston who were running sweep stopped to see what the problem was. I said no go. Ben then reminded me of my most important tool on my bike, my AAA card. Within about 45 minutes my bike was on a trailer, I was in a warm truck and we were heading for my house. A 75 miles prepaid trip with no additional charges directly to my garage.

I am a do it yourself kind of guy. But let's face it, with today's modern motorcycles there is not much that can be done on the road if you break down. Yes, you can get gas or plug and fill a tire but not much else. When a little black component of a sealed computer that is buried in the center of your motorcycle goes blink, you are toast. All you want to know is how in the hell am I going to get me and my bike back home. For me it's my AAA card.

Below I have done some research on towing services that are available near here. I certainly may have missed some. The reason I like AAA is you can use them for towing 4 times a year without a additional charge and they have towing providers all over the place, even Elk California. In addition, they tow the furthest.

Another great thing about my AAA card is they will even tow a friend's bike using your card. I am not sure how this works, but I have firsthand experience in having an unmentioned friends inoperable Harley towed from my house to the dealership using my card.

Bad Day for “Big Blue”

Here are a few pictures of “Big Blue” on the day of the ride and a couple of days later. If ever someone says to you they like BMW motorcycles because of the great engineering you have my permission to tell them they are full of it! All this to get to the clutch!

Tom's Take

by Tom Cooke - Contributor

Buying a Used Bike? Consider This...

Brand new bikes are beautiful and seductive. Lots of riders lose some of their decision-making smarts when they see that shiny new thing on the showroom floor, or even in a motorcycle magazine.

That is just fine if "price is no object". For most of us, however, price plays an important part in our purchasing.

Here is the good news/bad news depending on if you are selling or buying a used bike. For the seller, bad news... the used bike market is soft. How soft? Lightly used bikes just a few years old can be had for 50% of their new cost. When a bike is more than a few years old but still all-together serviceable, it's book value may drop to as little as 25% of the new price. Bad news for sellers. But great news for buyers.

As a buyer, what should you take into account when shopping for a "new to you" used bike?

1. Judge the market and availability of the model bike you are looking for. Time is on your side. A decision made in haste may cost you. Look at many bikes of the model you are after and compare them to one another for overall condition.
2. Low mileage. In general, the lower the miles on the odometer the better, assuming good maintenance. But other factors like maintenance records showing excellent service record are also important.
3. Fewer owners are better than multiple owners. It stands to reason that the condition of a bike is harder to predict and verify when it has been through multiple owners.
4. Look closely at the tires. If the tires are neglected chances are the bike has been as well.
5. Cosmetic perfection. OK, maybe settle for near protection. Have little scratches and dings been touched up nicely? If yes it shows attention to detail on the part of the previous owner. Buy a well-cared for bike vs. one routinely "rode hard and put away wet".

6. Oil change history. Is the current oil clean? Can the seller show you evidence of regular oil changes?

7. Maintenance records. It is best to buy a bike from a seller who was very much on top of all called for maintenance. They should have records that confirm the service history of the bike.

8. Title, and all paperwork. Do not buy a bike, even at a discount, if all the legal paperwork is not in order. Do not fall for a creative story teller as a seller. Show me the title, proof of insurance and anything else deemed legally relevant.

9. Little pieces of the bike, even just nameplates and cosmetic pieces are expensive to replace. If the bike has missing parts, price them out before you buy the bike to avoid those unhappy surprises.

10. Color. Save the "silly" for last. Don't buy a bike, new or used, expensive or cheap, that you do not find attractive. If you buy a color or design you do not like, you may not keep the bike.

Rubber side down - Tom

Blast from the Past (President)

by "Big" Ben Johnstone - Past President

August 2018

NOBODY LEFT BEHIND. If you have recently joined the Redwood Riders, you may not be aware that the club motto is: "Nobody Left Behind".

This is something the club has always felt strongly about. One of the benefits of riding with a group is that there are others there that can help out if something goes wrong. Not only are we more visible when we ride together, but we bring help along with us, and there is always someone there to lead us home. A pretty great way to ride.

The club continues to grow, and we are getting more and more participants on our rides. This means more fun for everyone, but it also makes it easier for someone to drop out and not be noticed. The Road Captain and Sweep are there to make sure that this doesn't happen, but each rider can help as well. Road Captains don't always have radio communication with the Sweeps. You can help the RC know what is going on by never letting the person behind you is falling back, you should fall back as well while keeping the person in front of you in view. If everybody does this, the fall back will soon reach the RC and they will know to slow and wait, or pull over and send someone back to see what has happened. In this way we can all take care of each other.
